Corporal J. M. Lerche, Company A. 140th Infantry, sends some excellent advice to the home folks. After thanking a donor "for making possible this issue of good old American tobacco, which is the mainstay of us boys," he

"If I were to make a motto I'd have on it 'Buy Liberty Bonds and Smo'les.' We are all feeling fine here, but are longing for the U. S. A. and home. With best regards, and again thanking you. I am, a soldier boy in France."

One card which arrived in the latest batch from the soldiers will surely be preserved as a relic and souvenir of battle by the fortunate Hilltop Club, to which it is addressed. It comes from Sergeant Castle, who gives no other personal intelligence except that other personal intelligence except that he is a medical officer. Writing on July 7 he said:

Receipt of smokes gratefully ac knowledged, but am sorry to state that already the entire gift is in ashes and smoke. The whole works burned up piece by piece. And they never burned plece by piece. And they never purned witches at the stake with greater delight than I had in burning up these good old coffin nails. When I received your box cigarettes were about as scarce as chapter of the streets. In the afternoon there are then streets. Frank O'Brien supplied in a short story in Munacy's the germ of the idea which Lillian Trimble Bradley and George Broadhurst developed into "The Woman on the Index," seen last night at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre. Mr. O'Brien's fiction, however, was written before the war, while the scenes of the new play pass in Washington with the war as their background. Mrs. Lillian Trimble Bradley, who already has attained the three ply eminence which the native dramatist achieves early in his career, made a version of the story, on which she and the more experienced Mr.

Almost from the start of "Head Over Heels" it was soparent that Mitzi had suppressed none of her charm along with her last name. Henry W. Savage, who produced the entertainment at West Eighty-eighth street, was filed for if $25 or $30 is all you care George M. Cohan's Theatre last night, described it as a play with music. The number and diversity of episodes introduced would justify describing it as a revue. Mitzi was captivating throughout. It was not necessary to wait until her eighteenth change of cos-tume to call her a host in herself. The music was uniformly pretty, though never obtrusively so. What The Packers Do For You

Not very many years ago in the history of the world, the man that lived in America had to hunt for his food, or go without.

Now he sits down at a table and decides what he wants to eat; or his wife calls up the market and has it sent home for him. And what he gets is incomparably better. Everyone of us has some part in the vast human machine, called society, that makes all this convenience possible. The packer's part is to prepare meat and get it to every part of the country sweet and fresh-to obtain it from the stock raiser, to dress it, cool it, ship it many miles in special refrigerator cars, keep it cool at distributing points, and get it into the consumer's hands-your hands-through retailers, all within about two weeks. For this service—so perfect and effective that you are scarcely aware that anything is being done for youyou pay the packers an average profit of only a fraction of a cent a pound above actual cost on every pound of meat you eat.
